The pressure which was exerted on the Plenipotentiaries in the Congress by the defiant attitude which the opposing powers maintained toward each other, combined with the knowledge which members had of great war preparations being carried forward on the continent, led to very speedy action on the part of the Conference.

In the House of Commons, on the evenig of the 9th, Stanley congratulated the House and the country at large on the fact that the good sense and moderation of the powers primally interested as parties of the Luxemburg difficulty had the effect of arresting the unspeakable calamities which would ensue to the people from a European war. With respect to the part taken by Her Majesty's Government in the matter, the Cabinet acted in Crown; which responsibility, as well as the reasons which induced them to undertake it, they were ready to vindicate to Parliament and the content on the 4th by an iceberg grounding. It was soon repaired. The other cable is intact. the country. The matter had become very critical, and ministers were informed every moment, by telegraph and otherwise, of the increasing gravity of the case. He (Lord Stanley) couldn't take upon himself to postpone or delay a movement dreaded by all interests and proposed in conference, when by so doing he would most likely prevent altogether the maturing and giving expression to any settlement with reference to the guarantee of the neutrality of Luxemburg. He (Lord Stanley) regretted to observe that the Commons should show any susceptibility in regard to the action of the Cabinet, for he also wanted guarantee. Members of the house were aware that England-and what was an uncommon occurence—the remainder of the great powers, who were parties to the Lux-emburg Belge-Holland treaty of 1839 had absolutely guaranteed the territory of Luxemburg to the King of Holland at that time. What the Government had now done was merely to adopt that and render it efficacious in view of the changes tion. Ministers had not extended, but, on the contrary, had rather limited the guarantee incurred in thirty-five, and by that action contracted the responsibility which the country sustained under it. Present negotiations would be brought to a con-liament. Loud cheering followed the close of Stanlev's speech. During the close of the debate in the Commons on Disraeli's compromise to form amendments, Mr. Gladstone said the Government bill was shallow. transparent and dissimulating in its pretense of a measure for the extension of the franchise, and he despaired of its ever being made a good or beneficial one by the amendments in the House.

Curcago, April 30th .- The eight-hour law goes into effect to-morrow, and the Workingmen's Society is preparing for a grand display, with processions, and speeches by Governor Oglesby and others. The man of the workingmen is eight hours labor and nine hours pay. Most of the railroads have notified their employees that they will be paid by the hour. Many large employing firms declare that laborers must work as long as required, and will not pay full day's wages for eight hours' work. The prospect is that there will be a serious disarrangement in the relations of trade for some time. Some workingmen insist on old rates for reduced time. Employers almost unanimously refuse to pay at before. The result is awaited with much anxiety on all sides, not only in Illinois, but in other States. Chicago, May 1st .- The workingmen's demonstration to-day, in honor of the commencement of the operation of the eight hour law, was the largest display ever witnessed in Chicago. The number in the procession is estimated at 20,000 to 30,000, which had taken place in the German Confedera- representing nearly every department of labor. A great many workingmen hold aloof, apprehensive that the working of the law would not be advantageous to the working classes. More than half the shops of all kinds in the city were closed, the employers refusing to accede to the demands of the workmen. Whatever the ultimate result may be, it seems probable that the immediate effect of the law will be mischievous, and cause trouble between employers and laborers. Similar demonstrations occurred in most of the principal cities throughout the State, the workmen marching with banners and devices, expressing a determination

There was a large demonstration in St. Louis, and the meeting nominated Gov. Oglesby, of Illinois, as the workingmen's candidate for President. Cuicago, May 2d.-Great excitement prevailed in the city to-day. A mob of 500 eight-hour men were endeavoring by violence to prevent the workmen in the various lumber yards, railroad shops and other manufacturing establishments, from going to work under the ten-hour system The mob raided throughout the west division of the city early this morning, summarily closing shops, mills, &c., and ejecting men who were about when the doors were opened, and it was declared going to work. The police encountered the mob going to work. The police encountered the mob, prevented the demolition of the Fort Wayne road freight house. It was undoubtedly the work of some discontented laborers. The Mayor of the city has issued two proclamations, warning the citizens to keep the peace. The great body of the workingmen deprecate the course of the rioters. Cincago, May 8th.-Little change is reported in the labor movement. Many men are resuming work, but the strikers still hold meetings and assert their determination to hold out to the last.
